

ABSTRACT

A piece of furniture comprising an undercarriage, chair seat, back support and other supporting surfaces wherein the furniture is characterized by a support member having an elongated, bench-like shape, and at least one seat member with back support rotatably mounted on said support member. Said support member is formed with a recessed section wherein said seat member is mounted. Said recessed section can possibly be located substantially at the midpoint of said support member.